RDNO Providing Clarity for Temporary Access Permits for Bradley Creek Wildfire

The Regional District of North Okanagan (RDNO) is reminding Electoral Area B residents affected by the Bradley Creek Wildfire that Temporary Access Permit applications are not being accepted at this time.

As emergency officials continue to assess conditions within the Evacuation Order area, there have been questions regarding temporary access to properties. At this time, no temporary access permits have been approved by the RDNO, and residents should continue to comply with the Evacuation Order and remain out of the affected area.

Access would be considered only when emergency officials determine that conditions are safe for residents and responders. If temporary access becomes available in the future, the RDNO would only have authority to provide support to residents with addresses located within Electoral Area B, including:

- 17 and 65 Cain Road
- 131, 252, 351, 425, 485, 631, 635 Nashwito Road
- 10, 15, 50, 93 Banks Road

Residents are reminded that those with properties located within the Okanagan Indian Band would be required to contact the Okanagan Indian Band directly regarding any access requests, permit processes, or related inquiries.

The safety of residents, first responders, and wildfire personnel remains the highest priority. The RDNO appreciates the patience and cooperation of those impacted by the Bradley Creek Wildfire and will continue to share updates as information becomes available. Please note, that no assistance relating to temporary access permits is available at the Emergency Support Services reception centre located at Kal Tire Place. Residents with an address from the list above can contact the RDNO Emergency Operations Center at 250-550-3299.
